Snow sculpture with added bite is Web hit

A KILLER whale created out of snow by a group of people in the Southfields area of Northampton has become an internet sensation.

After the picture of the whale was uploaded on to the Chronicle & Echo's Facebook page the image received more than 500 "likes" and attracted almost 100 comments.

Jason Eastaff, one of the people who helped sculpt the whale, said it had taken more than 15 hours to complete and had been the brainchild of Southfields resident Owen Carter.

Jason, aged 21, said: "Owen started making it at 7.30am on Sunday and we worked until 5pm and on Monday we were working until 4pm.

"Owen came up with the idea as he has made a gorilla, a kangaroo and an elephant in the past.

"He said he wanted to make something bigger and better."

Jason said the group used charcoal and red food colouring to construct the mouth and body of the whale.

He said: "We had heaps of fun making it and we've had about 50 cars stop and take photographs of it."

Comments on the photograph by Facebook users stated that "it showed that people who live on the same estate can do something good together" and it had "put Southfields on the map".

Cigarettes stolen in twin raids

A GANG of masked burglars, armed with sledgehammers, stole "thousands of pounds" of cigarettes after smashing their way into two convenience stores in Northampton.

Detectives believe the raids, which targeted shops on opposite sides of Northampton within an hour of each other, were carried out by the same gang.

The first smash and grab happened at around 11.05pm on Monday, at the One Stop Shop, in Kent Road, Duston, when three men smashed a glass front door, broke the shutters and then looted the shop of cigarettes. The second, identical raid took place at around 11.55pm at the Co-op, in Wootton Hope Drive, Wootton Fields.

In both raids a group of three men drove up to the shop in a dark-coloured Audi A5 and used sledgehammers to smash their way in.

Police have revealed several thousand pounds of cigarettes were taken from each store and said the burglars were believed to have carried them away in a duvet cover or a blanket.

Detectives are now examining CCTV footage of the raids.

An eyewitness to the One Stop Shop burglary told the Mercury he witnessed the whole attack and phoned police as the three men were attacking the shop.

'Victim' hits his muggers

TWO muggers got more than they bargained for after trying to rob a passer-by on a dark path. They demanded the victim hand over his phone, wallet and keys as he walked under the A43 towards Lombardy Court and along Weston Favell playing fields on Saturday at around 6.30pm. When he refused one of the men pushed him. The victim then punched both muggers. One then ran off, while the second was left lying injured in the snow.

Man hurt in gang attack

A MAN was left with cuts and bruises after he was set upon by a gang in Daventry on Saturday between 2.30am and 3am in Sheaf Street, when he was attacked by a group of young men. One of the group punched the victim several times to the head, causing a cut to his right eye.

Swan broke wing in ice

FIREFIGHTERS rescued a swan with a broken wing after it became stuck in ice in the River Nene near The Britannia pub, in Bedford Road, Northampton. The rescue happened shortly before 11am Monday and the swan was passed to the RSPCA.

Rapist gets seven years

A RAPIST who denied forcing himself on a woman was convicted and jailed at Northampton Crown Court. John McMillan, aged 30, of Corby, denied a single allegation of rape but was found guilty at a six-day trial. Judge Rupert Mayo jailed him for seven years and two months and placed him on the sex offenders' list.

Knife men steal cash

TWO muggers brandishing a knife stole cash from a man as he walked through an alleyway near Bradlaugh Fields in Kingsthorpe, Northampton. The mugging happened at about 10.45am on Thursday, January 26.

Sooty is recovering at a vets in Newmarket after being found with a gunshot wound

Horse may have to live with a bullet in neck

A HORSE shot in the neck by "evil" thugs may now have to live the rest of its life with a bullet lodged in its body, according to the animal's devastated owner.

Elaine O'Callaghan went out to check her 12-year-old horse, Sooty, but found it cowering at the back of the stable, at Upton Mill Stables.

She said the usually friendly, sociable horse was too scared to come forward. After realising it had dried blood on its body, she examined its neck and found a hole in its coat and a gaping wound in its neck.

Mrs O'Callaghan immediately called the vet and had the shocking news confirmed that her horse had been shot.

She said: "I knew straight away a pellet had gone through his rug and had gone into him."

"I phoned the police and the vet and they came out and X-rayed him and they thought it was a pellet to begin with, but now they think it may have actually been a bullet." Sooty was transferred to an equine hospital in Newmarket where experts examined it and took another X-ray.

Initially they said they wanted to remove the bullet as soon as possible.

However, Mrs O'Callaghan has now been told Sooty may have to live with the bullet lodged in its body because it would be too dangerous to remove it. In the meantime, Sooty's vet bill has already run into thousands of pounds.

Mrs O'Callaghan said: "They've said it would be worse for the horse to take it out than it would be to leave it there. It's a nightmare and it's costing an absolute fortune to treat him."

"Whoever has done this needs bringing to justice because they are evil."

She added: "My concern is what damage it could do to him in the long term. I just want whoever has done this brought to justice."

"It's horrendous to do this to a horse." Sooty remains at the veterinary surgery in Newmarket following the shocking attack.

Sandy Redmore, from Horsewatch in Northamptonshire, said: "I haven't heard of anything like this happening here before."

"It's obviously very worrying for the owner as every time she goes up there now she won't know what she will find."

She encouraged horse owners to get to know residents living close to stables and ask them to keep an eye on yards.

MP leads bid to curb wind farm subsidies

MORE than 100 MPs have signed a letter urging the Prime Minister to slash subsidies given to wind farm developers.

Conservative MP for Daventry, Chris Heaton-Harris, believes a cut would dramatically reduce the high volume of wind farm applications in Northamptonshire.

Mr Heaton-Harris's letter, which has been signed by 106 MPs, including 101 Conservatives, also put pressure on David Cameron to give local people more influence to stop developments being built.

He said: "There would be a dramatic reduction in new wind farm applications in Northamptonshire. It's one of the least windy places in the country."

"Although the letter does not mention a figure, Mr Heaton-Harris said he would like to see the subsidies reduced "dramatically."

THAT'S SNOW

THE first snow of 2012 was enjoyed by people across Northampton with hundreds of children filling the town's parks with sledges and snowmen.

The town was blanketed in up to four inches of snow on Saturday evening leaving many of the minor roads in the town completely impassable.

But, by Sunday morning, the majority of the main roads were clear and many people took up the opportunity to enjoy a day out in the snow.

As well as The Racecourse, many children chose to go sledging in Abington Park and despite the bad weather, many people also went into the town centre to do some shopping.

Businessman Mark Howes, who runs the News Cafe in Fish Street said: "It's surprising how many people there have been in town."

"During the morning we sold an awful lot of breakfasts and cooked food. It was as busy as any other Sunday for this time of year."

As the cold temperatures led to sections of the River Nene freezing over, the police advised people not to go walking on the ice.

Gritters treated the main roads in the county and Abington Street in the town centre (above)

Convicts help grit our roads

CONVICTED criminals gritted paths and pavements in Northampton outside care homes, sheltered housing blocks and shops to allow elderly residents to walk around the town after the heavy snowfall.

As part of a pilot project, offenders wearing fluorescent orange "Community Payback" jackets gritted areas outside James Lewis Court in Cherry Orchard; the St James area off Weedon Road around Abbey Street and Alma Road; and the sheltered housing in Exeter Place between Market Street and Brunswich Place.

The project was a joint initiative between Northamptonshire County Council and NHS Northamptonshire.

Councillor Andre Gonzalez De Savage (Con, East Hunsbury) Northamptonshire County Council cabinet member for infrastructure and public protection, said: "I'm delighted this has been so successful and people can see real benefits around the county."

"A key role of the council is to help those who are most in need and I believe this collaborative effort is doing that very effectively."

Following the severe weather on Saturday evening, Northamptonshire Police received almost 500 emergency 999 calls, including a large amount from people complaining about snowballs being thrown.

A total of 63 incidents relating to snowballs were reported on Saturday with a further 158 reported the following day.

East Midlands Ambulance Service also experienced an increase in calls over the weekend, and on Sunday received more than 1,000 calls from people reporting a life-threatening illness or injury.

The new manager of the Grosvenor Centre, Paul Haynes, has shopped at the centre for the past 20 years and is now in charge of leading it into the future

New centre boss predicts bright future

THE MAN who will lead Northampton's main shopping centre through its biggest ever change has said the redevelopment of the mall will help improve the entire town centre.

After being on the cards for years, work to expand the Grosvenor Centre is due to start in 2014 and be completed by 2017.

The scheme will see a large extension to the centre built over the site of the current Greyfriars bus station and the centre's new manager, Paul Haynes, said the redevelopment would improve the entire town.

He said: "In my experience if a shopping centre is redeveloped, that can work as a catalyst for future investment both inside and outside the centre.

"So it's a great time for me to come into this role. I'm at the beginning of a new era for the centre and hopefully for the town.

"I think Northampton has got superb potential for the future with the Grosvenor Centre being the prime retail location.

"It's got a massive part to play in the future success of Northampton."

Mr Haynes previously managed Bury St Edmunds shopping centre in Suffolk and saw it through a regeneration project similar to the one proposed for Northampton.

He has been brought into Northampton to manage the Grosvenor Centre following the retirement of previous centre manager, Sheridan New, after seven years.

The new centre manager, who is from Long Buckby, has shopped at the Grosvenor Centre for the past 20 years and said he believed the big name stores which are already in the centre would help attract more in the future.

He said: "House of Fraser is an anchor store for centres like this, so to have it here already is brilliant.

"Retailers like to be around quality brands like that.

"Costa and the Superdry concession in House of Fraser are also new brands in the centre and ones we are proud to have.

"We want more of the same."

Empty shop units will soon be filled, says Grosvenor manager

THE new manager of the Grosvenor Centre said he firmly believed the mall's empty shops would soon be filled.

Long Buckby resident, Paul Haynes, has taken over control of the shopping centre at a time when the global economic meltdown has seen a number of national stores close.

But after a number of high profile closures in Northampton town centre, the Grosvenor Centre is still about 95 per cent full, and Mr Haynes said he believed many of the empty shops would soon be filled.

He said: "We've had a lot of interest already in all the empty units.

"A lot of the closures cannot be helped from the national perspective of businesses closing down, but I think we're better placed than a lot of other centres."

The centre manager also said the planned expansion of the mall, which will see larger shops created, should attract more firms.

He said: "There are some missing names in the centre but I think if retailers are given the right amount of space they will come here."

Plan for 464 flats in town centre

PICTURES showing what a seven-storey block of student flats which is planned for Northampton town centre could look like have been unveiled.

Our sister daily paper, the Chronicle & Echo, first revealed in September that officials from The University of Northampton were holding talks with both Northampton Borough Council and the West Northamptonshire Development Corporation (WNDC) about plans to build 464 student flats on the St John's open air car park, close to the Derngate Theatre.

Now, the university has submitted official plans for the development to the council.

They reveal the student flats would be built over a number of levels, rising to a maximum height of seven storeys.

The university said the development would create a new landmark.

But the plans also show that while the 150 space St John's car park would be built over, just five parking spaces for disabled students would be provided in the new development.

An official report looking at the impact of the development argued the drop in parking spaces would not have a serious impact on the town centre.

The report, which was commis-

How the new students' flats could look . . . the occupants could boost town centre trade by £2.9million a year sioned by the university, said: "It is unlikely that students living at this site will keep cars elsewhere as there is very limited unrestricted parking locally and the cost of parking a car commercially is considered prohibitive."

"This overcomes any concern about students driving to the campuses and parking on surrounding streets."

The university also said that any students who moved into the flats would not be given parking permits for either the Avenue or

Park Avenue campuses, dissuading them from having cars.

The borough council also said the town currently had 1,792 more parking spaces than were used at peak times.

The council has also worked out that attracting 500 students to the town centre could generate £2.9 million for the centre's economy each year.

The council's planning committee is expected to decide if the development can go ahead by the end of April.

Alcohol patients numbers double

THE number of inpatients admitted to Northampton General Hospital with alcohol-related health problems has increased by more than 50 per cent in the last five years.

Figures released by the Northampton hospital show that more than 5,600 inpatients suffering from alcohol-related injuries or illnesses were treated at the hospital between 2007 and 2011.

This included 1,300 people last year, a rise of 51 per cent on the total of 857 patients five recorded years ago.

The figures, which were released by the Northampton General Hospital NHS Trust following a Freedom of Information request, also show a 75 per cent increase in the number of admissions due to alcohol poisoning – or binge drinking – during the same five year period.

Last year, the hospital treated 47 patients for alcohol poisoning, compared to just 27 in 2007.

The director of public health for NHS Northamptonshire, Professor Stephen Horsley, said: "Reducing alcohol harm is one of the top priorities for health services in Northamptonshire.

"In 2010-11 there were 2,027 alcohol specific hospital admissions, costing the local NHS around £2.9m.

"Based on England average rates, if we don't do anything and the rate continues to rise, alcohol specific hospital admissions will cost the NHS in Northamptonshire an additional £1.4m by 2014-15."

NHS Northamptonshire invested more than £1.1m in 2010 and 2011 after the county was red flagged for alcohol harm in 2009.

Above, Zyna Doran and Tommie Casey settling down for the night

Fundraisers chose cold night for a sleep-out!

A SPONSORED sleep-out in temperatures as low as -9C has raised more than £20,000 for a Northampton homeless shelter.

More than 50 people braved the bad weather to take part in the annual event, which was held in the churchyard of St Giles' Church, in the town centre, from 6pm on Friday until 6am on Saturday.

Debbie Galton, from The Hope Centre, in Ash Street, said only four people had to leave early due to the extremely low temperatures.

She said: "It's more people than we've ever had go home, before but everyone else saw it through.

"Due to the low temperatures though we took the extra precaution of checking on people through the night and making sure they had worn lots of extra clothes and had lots of bedding."

Two of the people taking part in the sleep-out, Debbie Kay and Karen Wilson, joined in because they work at Wellingborough Prison where they help people who have been homeless and have drug problems.

Mrs Kay said: "We see people in prison who are homeless all the time and they think we're mad doing this in such cold temperatures."

"But we want to experience what they experience so we know what its like. We have received £50 of sponsorship from the prisoners."

Another woman who took part was Lindsay Green, who helps people in Northamptonshire with mental health problems.

She said: "I think this is a good way of doing something and raising money for the homeless shelter and raising awareness of the charity."

The money raised from the event will be used to fund the Hope Centre's work with local homeless people, and the work of CAN, the Northampton-based charity which helps people with drug and alcohol problems.

Protesters hug town libraries

PEOPLE in Northampton town centre were asked to demonstrate their love for the county's libraries to celebrate National Library Day.

Outside Central Library in Abington Street on Saturday, members of the Northampton Alliance to Defend Services (NADS) invited people to fill in a "love heart" explaining what they liked about their library and then pin it up on a clothes line.

To mark the occasion, members of the group "hugged" the library. A similar event also took place outside Towcester Library.

Jill Elks, of NADS, said the aim of the event was to show how important libraries are to a large number of people in the county.

She said: "We want the council to stop the cuts to the libraries."

"Some people don't think they are important, but there is a whole strata of society that use them much more."

"For some people the first time they will speak to someone will be when they go to the library and other people will go there simply to keep warm."

"There is a lot of research which says the Government would end up paying more in emotional support if they closed the libraries."

Bob Ansell, of NADS, said he had used libraries all his life and borrowed his first book when he was five-years-old.

He said: "If you staff libraries with volunteers that makes them so much weaker and more vulnerable to closure."

"And if we close the libraries what message is that sending out to the community about education and learning?"

"We are trying to offer a positive message and show the council that libraries are a resource we need."

Culture Minister Ed Vaizey MP has launched a national campaign to encourage smartphone users to celebrate UK public libraries by putting their library on a specially-created Google map.

Using the 'Find a Library' mobile app available at www.findalibrary.org.uk, people can go to their local library, click 'Use my Location', select their library and then 'Put Library on the Map'. This will ensure that their library is included in the national database of public libraries.

Energy saving scheme launched

HOUSES in selected parts of Northampton could soon be made more energy efficient.

Northampton Borough Council has joined with energy company E.ON to improve the energy efficiency of more than 2,500 council houses in some of the most deprived areas of town and help private home owners save energy and money.

Householders qualifying for the scheme could save up to £300 a year on their fuel bills through a series of energy saving measures that could include external wall insulation, loft insulation, new boilers and solar panels.

Homes need to be in Castle, Spencer, St James, Lumbertubs, Billing or Eastfields to qualify.

Council tenants who qualify will be informed by letter and will be invited to a special event to find out more about the measures on offer.

Private households in the qualifying areas will also have the opportunity to apply for grants to install energy saving measures at discounted prices.

For more information call E.ON on 0800 015 2475 or the council on Northampton 837836.

Fitness is a walk in the park

A NEW range of fitness equipment, worth £17,000, has been installed in a Northampton park.

The equipment which has been paid for by Northampton Borough Council, Southfields Residents' Association and money donated from Councillor Dennis Meredith's empowerment fund, was officially opened in Southfields Park by the deputy mayor, Roger Conroy, on Saturday.

It has taken four years to raise the money to buy the new equipment and the fund-raising campaign has been led by Councillor Meredith (Lib Dem, Talavera).

Councillor Meredith said: "I went to France four years and saw some fitness equipment in a park there and I thought it would be good to bring some similar sort of equipment over to this country.

"I think this sort of equipment is unique to see in the county."

When the equipment was being installed last week a bench was ripped out from wet concrete but Councillor Meredith said, now it was in place, it was designed to be "vandal proof".

Dramatic drop in deliberate fires

ARSON attack rates have dramatically fallen in the county, with Northamptonshire seeing one of the biggest reductions in deliberate fires in the country, new figures have revealed.

Attacks on homes and businesses fell by 45 per cent in 2010-11 compared to the year before, a drop from 543 incidents to a total of 296.

The figures represent the second highest fall in the country and a major fall from the 1,533 which were recorded in the county in 2001-02.

The county also recorded the biggest national reduction in vehicle arson with a total of 173, which is down 48 per cent.

Deliberate fires involving derelict buildings and vehicles were also down to 161, a drop of 83 per cent.

The county's chief fire officer, Martin Emberson, welcomed the major drop in the number of deliberate fires started in the county.

He said: "Having fewer incidents means our firefighters can concentrate on doing more training so we can help the public even more.

"The area is a much safer place as a result of what everyone has been doing."

Cross ban fight goes national

A PARISH priest from Northamptonshire says Christians should no longer "grudgingly accept" orders from their bosses to take off crucifixes.

Following a number of reports in the national press about workers who have been told to remove crucifix necklaces, the Rev Stephen Trott, who is the Rector of Pitsford with Boughton, has presented a motion to the Church of England's national assembly calling on the church to condemn the "silencing" of open displays of Christianity.

He said: "There have been a lot of press reports of how the Human Rights Act is impacting on people and how Christians find life difficult when they're being told by their employers what they can and can't do."

"There have been two cases which have gone to court where people have been told to take off crosses, so I think it's a real issue.

"We want to encourage people not to just grudgingly accept it, but be willing to speak up for what they believe in."

Members of the General Synod, which is described as the Church of England's version of Parliament, are due to discuss the motion in London later this week.

The Rev Stephen Trott

The motion written by Mr Trott has already won the backing of three bishops and 100 other members of the Synod, but it is not yet known if it will be approved by the wider body.

Mr Trott, who is also the chaplain to Pitsford School, said that if the motion was approved, people who went to court in the future after being told to remove a crucifix would be able to say they had the church's full backing.

Mr Trott has been the parish priest for Pitsford and Boughton since 1988.

Race ace pays a flying visit to town

Leon Haslam and Steve Parrish with the Wollaston BMW team

MOTORCYCLE racer Leon Haslam met fans at an event in aid of a children's charity.

The World Superbike star, who rides for BMW, was at a preview evening for the launch of the company's 2012 range at Wollaston BMW in Northampton on Friday.

The 28-year-old, who was joined by MotoGP commentator Steve Parrish, signed autographs and answered questions from the crowd at the fund-raiser for Sparks, which attracted about 200 people.

He said: "Once the season gets under way it gets quite hectic and it can be difficult to fit in events like this, so it's nice to see everyone over the winter."

Richard Higgs, motorcycle manager at Wollaston BMW, said: "We thought it would be nice to get Leon down here for the evening and invite all our prospective customers to do something for charity while having a look at the new range."

WORLD-FAMOUS boot and shoe manufacturer Dr Martens is up for sale.

The firm, which has factories in Wollaston and Irthlingborough, has been put on the market after a resurgence in sales in recent years.

The company is making no official comment, but owners R Griggs Ltd has appointed investment bank Rothschild to test the market for buyers.

R Griggs Ltd, run by Max Griggs, has been making the shoes since 1960.

The brand is famous for its popularity among punks, goths and skinheads, with bands such as The Who and The Clash among its fans.

A downturn in 2000 saw the firm move production to China and Thailand, but the original factory in Cobb's Lane, Wollaston reopened in 2007.

Last month the company announced the launch of an apprenticeship scheme which will give four people the chance to learn every aspect of shoemaking.

Last year the company made a pre-tax profit of £15.3m, up from £5m the previous year.

Most misuse hospital's A&E service

SURVEYS of patients arriving at Northamptonshire emergency departments revealed only one in three rang their GP first, as a hard-hitting NHS TV ad is released showing the tragic consequences of A&E misuse.

The post-watershed TV ad campaign shows people with minor injuries and illnesses regretting calling 999 and finishes with a depiction of a young girl dying on a hospital trolley.

It comes as a survey of more than 500 people over the course of a week at Northampton and Kettering General Hospitals that shows more than 60 per cent failed to consult their GP or an out-of-hours doctor before deciding how serious their complaint was.

NHS bosses said 100 of the total number interviewed could have gone to their GP and many more could have used the minor injury service for "walking wounded".

Heidi King, head of social marketing at NHS Northamptonshire, said: "We wanted to understand what kind of people are turning up to A&E and what they are doing there, and hopefully this will help us target people better with our Choose Well messages."

Detailed analysis is yet to be carried out but the survey findings are expected to suggest A&E is being used more by people in their 20s and 30s with sports injuries. It is also expected that people living near to the hospital are more likely to go to A&E for convenience.

Other findings from the survey show more than half of the patients had previously attended A&E within the last six months, suggesting there are fewer people in the county becoming ill and injured people than had been assumed by high figures.

The survey also showed every respondent could name at least one alternative to A&E, but just over half had not tried to contact them.

NHS bosses said yesterday they were now trying to solve those problems with the shock tactics of the new advertisement.

Mrs King added: "The purpose of the advertisement is to challenge people to think about their behaviour and open up the debate with local people on the use of A&E."

"The new survey confirms to us that we still have more work to do on educating people on the use of alternative services."

Stroke patients hit in cash crisis

STROKE patients in Northamptonshire could be left without expert advice and speech therapy from the end of March after a charity had its funding withdrawn.

The Stroke Association has sent letters to carers and patients informing them two key services provided by its experts would cease because Northamptonshire County Council funding has dried up.

Yesterday the local authority said its own money for the services had come from the Department of Health and that has now been cut, forcing it to do the same.

Joyce Smith, whose 61-year-old husband, John, suffered a stroke in 2008, said the letter had left the couple feeling downcast.

She said: "This is another service for the vulnerable and disabled kicked to the wayside."

"This is so unfair. My husband would not be so outgoing or be able to speak at all if it wasn't for the help he has received."

"He's right-handed but his stroke affected that side, so they taught him to write left-handed. That might seem a simple thing but it's very important for stroke victims to do normal things again. I can't hope to learn all the things these experts know, and it will be worse for people who live on their own."

"I dare say he would be sat at home doing nothing at all or in a home being cared for at the council's expense, as we couldn't afford it. I realise they have to make cuts somewhere but why is it the vulnerable and disabled who have to suffer."

Joyce Smith and her husband, John, who suffered a stroke in 2008 and was given vital support from The Stroke Association

Simon Cook, regional head of operations at The Stroke Association, said: "These services are a lifeline in helping patients get back to a decent quality of life and, in many cases, a good recovery."

"They provide value for money and can save local authorities and the health service from incurring other costs. They have a huge and positive impact on stroke survivors and their carers."

"Although we recognise that local authorities are operating in challenging times, stroke support services must be given the priority they deserve

"We will try to ensure alternative arrangements are in place so that stroke survivors don't lose out and that they receive the support needed for their recovery."

A spokeswoman for Northamptonshire County Council said the advice service will be switched to the Northamptonshire Centre for Independent Living (CIL), a group that supports disabled people in the county.

She said: "The Department of Health allocated £116k funding each year over three years for the provision of stroke services."

"Unfortunately, this funding has now ceased and as a result the council is no longer able to fund the stroke-specific services currently provided by the Stroke Association beyond March 31 2012."

Thieves target town cabs in smash and grab raids

POLICE have issued a warning to cab drivers after thieves started targeting unattended cabs at night in Northampton.

The warning comes as police revealed 20 taxis and private hire vehicles were last month looted by thieves, who have begun smashing car windows to taxis and taking sat nav systems and other valuables.

Police have reminded drivers not to leave cash or valuables in their vehicles when they are not in use.

Kevin Willsher, chairman of the Northamptonshire Private Hire Association, said the thefts, which were usually at night, hit drivers in more than one way.

He said: "It is not just the question of the sat nav being stolen, they often smash the window so there is the repair cost and obviously you can't drive it with a smashed window so you have to take it off the road. It is a bad state of affairs really."

"It seems to happen in waves. You get a wave of it for a few weeks and then it is left alone for a month or so and then it happens again."

Officer Nick Paul, from Operation Guardian, added: "I would urge all vehicle owners not to leave any valuable items in their vehicles, this includes storing items in glove compartments or under seats."

"Make sure you lock your doors and ensure windows are closed. Secure your vehicle at all time. Where possible remove any signs that may indicate your car is a taxi or hire vehicle."

Kevin Willsher, chairman of the Northamptonshire Private Hire Association, has sent a warning to drivers

Rose-tinted memories

THE MUPPETS (U, 109 mins)
Family/Comedy/Musical. Jason Segel, Amy Adams, Chris Cooper, Alan Arkin, Rashida Jones and the voices of Peter Linz, Steve Whitmire, Eric Jacobson, Dave Goelz. Director: James Bobin.

FOR MORE than 35 years, Kermit The Frog, Miss Piggy and their fun-loving friends have been firmly engrained in our rose-tinted childhood memories with their slapstick routines and song and dance numbers. The popularity of Jim Henson's creations has never waned thanks to endless repeats of the award-winning television series The Muppet Show, which ended in 1981, and subsequent film adventures including madcap re-imaginings of A Christmas Carol, Treasure Island and The Wizard Of Oz. Director James Bobin expertly taps into that nostalgia with The Muppets, a glorious throwback to the days of yore that sees the colourful critters facing an uncertain future in a world of technological advances and fleeting celebrity. The script, co-written by leading man Jason Segel and Nicholas Stoller, strikes the perfect balance between affection and irreverence, knowingly tipping the wink to leaps in plot logic. So when one character reveals that the only way to save the iconic Muppet Theatre from demolition is to raise 10 million dollars in two weeks, Waldorf turns to the camera and quips, "If I didn't know better, I'd say you were reciting an important plot point!" The Muppets is a perfect family film with broad humour to appeal to all ages, interspersed with delightful ditties. Director Bobin milks laughter and tears in generous, equal measures, leaving us hankering for more. A delightful new Toy Story short called Small Fry, in which Buzz Lightyear is locked inside a fast food restaurant and joins a support group for discarded meal toys, plays before the main feature.

FIRST LOOK: Audi A1 Sportback

REVIEW BY MATT JOY

"YOUTH is wasted on the young", or so wrote George Bernard Shaw. It's easy to agree but listen to the noises coming out of most car manufacturers and it is young people who are driving their business.

Today's youth are increasingly savvy, endlessly connected to one another and the world around them, as well as very demanding.

It's hard to disagree when you look at a car like Audi's A1. It is a genuinely small car and can fit into all those urban parking spaces (if such things still existed), yet it feels properly grown up to drive and comes with pretty much all the kind of kit you'd expect to find on something much higher up the Audi range.

Now they've gone and turned it into a five-door to create the A1 Sportback.

Apart from the increased number of doors, there's nothing to distinguish the Sportback from the regular A1: park one next to the other and you might see the changes but the Sportback is just 6mm longer and wider than the three-door. More importantly, though, the roof is longer which gives 11mm more headroom and 13mm more shoulder room.

Small measurements count of course, and with a proper door to get access to the back seats, you'd consider taking friends on board.

The rear bench has three seats as standard in the UK but you can specify a two-seat version at no extra cost.

There is a reality check of course; adding a few millimetres here and there doesn't turn it into an A8 limo overnight.

But adults will fit and it's no smaller back there than any other car of a comparable size.

In the boot there is the same 270 litres of usefully shaped space, and the optional under-floor storage pack is a useful box to tick as it maximises the space available.

The transformation from three to five doors hasn't hurt the looks either. This is still a modern and attractive small hatchback and as is the way with youth-oriented cars, it can be personalised to an obsessive degree.

The entry-level SE version still has 15-inch alloys, air conditioning, electric windows all round and an audio system with an auxiliary input and SD card reader.

Perhaps more importantly, even this humblest version doesn't feel very humble at all. The cabin is relatively simple but there are soft-touch plastics everywhere, everything 'thunks' with reassuring solidity and transmits that warm sense of wellbeing that made you choose an Audi in the first place.

There are stacks of flavours for your A1 too. Sport and S line sit above the SE model, both of which are enhanced by bigger alloy wheels, sports suspension and exterior tweaks.

There's more kit in the cabin too, with Sport and above gaining the multi-function steering wheel and driver's information system, sports seats and Bluetooth.

Better still is the very broad engine range. The diesel options, as always with Audis, are very good.

The 1.6-TDI is hilariously frugal although no road-rocket, and in the summer the option of a 2.0-litre TDI will appear and do a very convincing impression of a hot-hatch: try 0-62mph in 8.3 seconds as well as combined economy figure of 69mpg.

Audi is also working hard on the petrol options with four TFSI units available.

However, it is the mid-output 1.4 TFSI that's the most interesting. With 138bhp and 184lb.ft of torque, it's even quicker to 62mph than the 2.0-litre diesel and has a free-revving nature that you only get from petrol.

Even better is the fact that it borrows the clever cylinder on-demand technology from the S8 saloon, and at constant speeds and low engine loads it switches seamlessly into two cylinder running.

Even if you listen carefully you can't hear the switch either way - in most instances you'll only notice the change thanks to the instrument display.

It clearly works too. With 109g/km of CO₂, it is clearly the cleanest petrol A1 and 60.1mpg combined is very close to the big diesel.

With the price for this model below the 2.0-litre TDI, it presents a real alternative to default diesel.

It's unlikely that you'll find the driving experience to be disappointing either.

It's super slick and effortless rather than hugely involving, but point the A1 Sportback at a series of bends and it tackles them gamely with quick, accurate steering and generally feeling of being light on its toes.

The clever 1.4 TFSI can also be had with the desirable S tronic seven-speed transmission, which makes an ideal partner for switching between eco and fun driving.

If you're young and reasonably affluent, a car like the A1

One year on since you've been gone,
 I miss your voice so much,
 I miss your smile,
 it's been a while and
 I do so miss your touch.
 But when I really need you
 I feel your hand in mine and hear you softly saying,
 I'm with you all the time.
 Love always Debbie

PRIDE OF NORTHAMPTON - the Saints quintet of Lee Dickson, Phil Dowson, Ben Foden, Dylan Hartley and Chris Ashton pose with their England team-mates following the 13-6 Six Nations win over Scotland at Murrayfield that saw them lift the Calcutta Cup

Hartley's pride at England win

DYLAN HARTLEY compared England's 13-6 victory over Scotland with his own personal coming-of-age performance in the opening round of last year's RBS 6 Nations championship.

Last season the England hooker was singled out for criticism by Wales coach Warren Gatland ahead of their clash at the Millennium Stadium in 2011.

The Northampton captain felt under enormous pressure, but responded with one of his best international performances as England launched their title campaign with a 26-19 victory.

Hartley was part of a young England squad on Saturday who had to collectively prove they could cut it at Test level after interim head coach Stuart Lancaster selected eight uncapped players.

It was ugly but England's young guns did just that, battling to their country's first win at Murrayfield since 2004.

"That result is up there with the start of last year's Six Nations when Warren Gatland had a pop at me," said Hartley. "There was a lot of personal pressure on myself in that game. This year, because of the fresh start and all the talk, there was a lot of pressure built on the team. It is no easy feat going away from home and winning a game. The feeling is one of relief. I felt quite emotional after the game.

"Everyone else was high-fiving and laughing. I just sat in the changing room and reflected."

England are on the road again on Saturday when they take on Italy in Rome.

Moving on up!

MARK SORENSON is looking forward to helping Saints move up to another level over the next couple of years after signing a new contract with the club.

The giant Kiwi has become an integral part of the Saints side this season after joining from Newcastle Falcons at the beginning of last term.

And with experienced Irish pair Roger Wilson and James Downey moving on, Saints boss Jim Mallinder is pleased to be holding on to one of his senior players.

The 32-year-old lock has already passed the 50-appearance mark for Saints and has experienced playing in a Heineken Cup final and a Premiership Rugby semi-final.

Born in Wellington, Sorenson, who moved to England in 2006 from Bay of Plenty, said: "We're in the LV= Cup semi-finals and are well placed in the Aviva Premiership with plenty to build on.

"And then over the next couple of years we can take the next step up and I'm looking forward to being part of the Saints squad in the future."

Sorenson has featured in all but two of Saints' matches this season and scored his first try in the black, green and gold in December's trip to Castres.

"I'm excited to have signed again," said Sorenson. "Moving to Northampton has been a great for me and my family.

"We've been made to feel very welcome by everyone at the club and the Saints supporters.

"It's a rugby mad area, which is something I really like and reminds me of where I grew up in New Zealand. The Saints fans are really knowledgeable and give us loads of support home and away.

"It's been exciting to have been a part of the club over the past 18 months, especially playing in a massive match like the Heineken Cup final. It's the type of occasion every player wants to be a part of.

"Hopefully we can get something out of this season."

Mallinder said: "Mark has been a good person to have around the club, for both his playing ability and experience. We have plenty of talented youngsters, but you also need some older heads who have experienced the highs and lows in the sport and can set an example."

Saints have also signed hooker Ross McMillan - who has been on trial at Franklin's Gardens since October - until the end of the season. Brett Sharman has been ruled out for several months after a knee operation.

Saints, who thrashed Wasps in the LV= Cup last weekend, are back in Premiership action on Saturday when they travel to Gloucester.

The win over Wasps sealed a home LV= semi-final for Saints, and they will take on Scarlets.

Aidy's raring to get going

AIDY BOOTHROYD says he can't wait to get stuck into the run of three games his Cobblers side play in the space of 10 days this month.

On Saturday, Town head to Dagenham & Redbridge to face a team just three points above them in the lower reaches of npower League Two.

After that, it's back-to-back Tuesday matches under the Sixfields lights, against Wimbledon and then Macclesfield in a game rearranged from Saturday.

They do not play a week on Saturday as Crawley Town are in FA Cup action, but Boothroyd is looking to build some momentum in a frantic fortnight.

"I'm really looking forward to this run of games we've got coming up," said the Cobblers boss, who has had to tailor training this week after the region's weekend snow-fall.

"We have a little run of games where we are playing on a lot of Tuesday nights and that gives us a really good opportunity to rack up some points.

"I can't wait for these games because we can use them to get some good momentum going and we can really start to climb the table.

The window to loan players opens today and the Cobblers will look to add to their squad ahead of the trip to Dagenham.

Although they have lost Saido Berahino back to West Bromwich Albion, Boothroyd has been happy with the changes he has made to the Sixfields squad over the past two months.

"We're still a couple of players away from where I'd ideally like the squad to be but I'm happy with the changes we've made in personnel and where we are with that," he said.

"It's a bit like a game of chess, you need to find things out about what players are going where and what effect that might have on the ones you want to sign.

"We've been quite lucky because we've got our first-choices on just about all of our signings but you need to have back-up options if they don't come off."

Berahino scored six goals in 15 appearances for Town, but was sidelined along with everybody else last Saturday when the scheduled clash with Macclesfield was postponed due to a frozen pitch.
